About Guide Star

GuideStar is an initiative of Philanthropic Research, Inc., a public charity founded in 1994. GuideStar's mission is to help improve the effectiveness of the nonprofit sector through the collection and presentation of exhaustive information about nonprofit organizations. Affiliated websites rely on GuideStar's database of 850,000 public charities to provide individuals with comprehensive information about charities that match their interests.

All charities listed in the GuideStar database and appearing on affiliated websites are public nonprofit organizations in good standing with the Internal Revenue Service. Charities are encouraged to supplement the information provided through GuideStar by completing the GuideStar Information Form. This form supplies potential donors and funders with details about the organization's mission, programs, beneficiaries, etc., as well as ensuring that the payment address for any donations made via the affiliated website system is correct. I have completed and submitted the form.

GuideStar is the registered trademark and operating name of Philanthropic Research, Inc., a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. Guidestar is a national organization recognized by financial institutions, banks, foundations, grant givers, and others for the purpose of connecting people to non-profit organizations, validating the legitimacy of charities and validating their address, mission, tax exemptions, etc., so that Donors can be confident that the charity they wish to contribute to is what they want to do and recognized by the IRS as tax-exempt. Guidestar gets a good part of its information directly from the IRS. Most big donors want financial and other details about a charity before they will contribute. Guidestar also provides information from the charity itself online to facilitate charitable giving. Guidestar itself is a non-profit organization. They have 5,000,000 + registered users of their Website.
